Status Report 1:

        Section 1:

        Section 2: This week we worked on creating our project board where we will have out incoming and outgoing project tasks and their completion on them. We ran into a little trouble understanding the instructions of what the assignment was asking for but with proper communication we figured it out. We did a good job splitting up the work that we had to get done, evenly amongst ourselves and we deemed that the last person to finish their part of the project would have to be the one who turns it in for the group. WE made alot of user stories this week that helped define the actions we would need to accomplish for our customers to experience the most satisfaction. We still need to fully establish a git repository for the team to use and make changes on.

        Section 3: in looking at this weeks agenda it seems to be like we do not have a whole ton of specific group work but I would like to keep adding the necessary files to our repository in order to keep track of everything. We will work together on making the base of the program. The fundamentals that will consist of what we need for the project.
